

Bird reflection

This video demonstrates entertaining about a big blue bird and a group of small birds. Not only cute and funny of this cartoon but also there is a message for everyone who watches this video.

In the beginning, a flock of small blue birds were sitting on a wire. When they were talking with each other, a big bird with a silly appearance came approached them and joined in. The large bird was judged and mocked by the small birds because of its size and appearance. After that the big bird flew and landed in the middle of the flock of small birds and made them slide next to it because of its weight. They wanted to push the silly bird out of the wire. The big bird was flipped and got pecked on toes by them. Finally, the wire springs back up, tossing the small birds into the sky. When they landed on the ground, they lost their feathers while the large bird stood nearby and smiled at them.

The video is not only entertaining but also it has a message for everyone "Don't judge the book by its cover". When you judge someone by their appearance and do something impolite, you will gain multiple of it. In this video, the small birds judged, smiled, and isolated the big bird because it looked slightly naive. Then they became a laughingstock because they had nothing to hide their body.

Overall, through its humor and visual storytelling, it reminds us that we should kindness and do not judge everything by the cover. The message is very funny yet equally profound.
