

Hi mate,

I hope you are well. It has been a very long time since we last met.

Today, I am writing this letter to you to say that I'm a patriot. Here in Boston, there have been massacres. The ferocious soldiers under the king have killed our kind-hearted people. We are feeling hurt, my friend. They want us to endure under their power and exploitation. We must feed their soldiers, let them live in our houses, and take care of them. Moreover, we must pay many unfair taxes, including those on stamps and tea. We have no one who can fight for our rights and benefits.

So, we rose up to fight for our independence and freedom. There have been many battles. We did not win all the battles, but we won most of the important ones. Our president, George Washington, is known as a clever, brave, and excellent leader. He had his army attack the enemy in the city of Trenton on Christmas night when the English were having a Christmas party. How smart his plan was! Following this success, George's army won the final battle in Yorktown in 1781. President George Washington not only led the army to win many battles but also led us to freedom and independence. Now, we are free. We are not colonists. Nothing is more precious than independence and freedom.

My friend, I wish you could understand my feelings right now. If you still kneel under the pressure of the power of the King, I strongly advise you to join us. Come here, my friend, and I will show you around where I live. In this place, liberty and happiness flourish. People no longer have to worry about unfair taxes. There are no soldiers living parasitically in our homes. King's power no longer affects this place.

I am waiting to hear your thoughts about the things I have shared and your life.

Your best friend,

Thach
